BOARD TO ASK NEW BIDS ON LEVEE

NEW PLANS ARE DRAWN UP FOR WORK ON SAN BRUNO ROAD; BOARD DISAPPROVES NO. 5 ON NOVEMBER BALLOT.

All bids for the construction of the levee to protect San Bruno road just south of this city from storm waters were rejected by the county supervisors at Monday's meeting of the board. New plans and specifications were then presented by County Surveyor George A. Kneese, and the county clerk was instructed to advertise for new bids, to be opened October 30th.

Reports from several county officials were received and an estimate from County Auditor J. J. Shields for the month of October.

Bids for the construction of a culvert at the Corte Madera creek on the Alpine road were opened, but all rejected as too high. County Surveyor George A. Kneese was instructed to construct the culvert by day labor.

William Graef, United States Health Department representative, addressed the board, requesting the continuance of an allowance of $35 per month for five men engaged in squirrel and other pest control in the county, and on motion of Supervisor MacBain, seconded by Supervisor Francis, the expense was ordered allowed for six months, beginning October 1st.

A petition was received from R. Guy Smith and sixty-four other residents of the coastside between Colma and Halfmoon Bay, protesting against the deplorable condition of the highway where it has been torn up by the State Highway Commission in the construction of the first unit of the Skyline boulevard. It was stated that this condition deprives many commuters of the service of the stage line and other transportation, and it was urged that every effort and means at the disposal of the board be made to have the roadway made passable. On a motion by Supervisor MacBain, seconded by Supervisor Francis, the clerk was instructed to communicate with the State Highway Commission engineer and request that the road be fixed.

Acting on a communication from the executive committee of the California Lumbermen, the board went on record as voting "No" on amendment No. 5, known as the state housing act, the clerk being instructed to so notify the association.

Authority to let a portion of the county's property at Menlo Park, consisting of a piece 50x100 feet, at $50 per month, was granted at the request of Supervisor MacBain.

A communication from R. H. K. Smith, executive secretary of the

MANY MOOSE MEMBERS HERE IN NOVEMBER

Delegates From All Over State to Hold Two-Day Convention in This City Soon.

Between 1100 and 1200 members of the Loyal Order of Moose are expected as visitors in this city November 11th and 12th to attend a convention of the order here. Elaborate plans are being formulated by the members of the local lodge for the entertainment of the visitors. These will include visits to several local factories, lodge sessions during which initiatory work will be put on, parades, etc.

Plans for the convention and the entertainment of the delegates are not yet completed and will be announced in detail later. It is known that there will be at least one public meeting which will be addressed by good speakers. It is expected that during this meeting much interesting information concerning Mooseheart, the beautiful home for children and the aged maintained by the Moose, will be given out.

It is probable that there will be street drills by the Moose drill team and also open-air concerts by the Moose musical organizations.

The delegates will come from all over the state and will be accompanied by their families.

SCHOOL SUPT. ADAMS SPEAKER AT INSTITUTE

L. E. Adams, supervising principal of the local schools, was the first speaker at the San Mateo County Teachers' Institute, which opened its three-day session at the San Mateo union high school Monday morning.

"The education of today stands in the same relative place science did before definite measurements were in use," Adams declared.

It is Adams' opinion that standardized tests would be the greatest step toward the progress of education. With the standardized test, not only the standing of individual pupils could be accurately determined, but a check could be established on the efficiency of the teacher and the weakest points about the school course could be revealed. Unjust marks would be avoided and the child's weaknesses corrected through the use of these tests which will assist to diagnose conditions.

Ingram F. Stewart, principal of Los Lomitas school, and W. L. Glascock, principal of San Mateo high school, were two other speakers Monday who dwelt upon subjects of interest to the teachers. Captain Kilroy Harris and Colonel A. S. Rowan addressed the gathering Monday afternoon, the former giving an illustrated talk on Australia, the latter telling the story of how he "carried the message to Garcia" at the time of the Spanish-American war, a feat immortalized by Elbert Hubbard. Musical numbers were given at both sessions.

The speakers Tuesday were Miss Clara E. Kaps, Ira K. Landis, A. J. Cloud, Wilford M. Aiken, and A. C. Olney. Instrumental and vocal numbers enlivened the sessions Tuesday and Wednesday.

On the last day the speakers were Dr. Herbert R. Stolz, James C. De Voss, and Ira K. Landis.

FLOYD JOHNSON LANDS ANOTHER BIG VICTORY

Once more Floyd Johnson, local boxing star and heavyweight championship aspirant, has brought home the bacon, his latest victory being one of the most notable of his career. This time his victim was Bob Martin, champion of the American forces in France during the war. Martin was considered one of only two or three men who stood between Johnson and Dempsey.

The bout between Johnson and Martin took place at Madison Square Garden in New York City. The mill was scheduled to go fifteen rounds, but Johnson was given the decision in the tenth round.

Reports of the fight which were sent out in the press dispatches declared it to have been a lively scrap from the start. But all the way through Johnson had an edge on his opponent, although the latter was game and took severe punishment. In the first round the soldier landed a terrific right and Johnson's knees sagged, but that was the only time, according to stories from the ringside, that Martin had a chance.

MERCHANTS MEET AT CITY HALL WEDNESDAY

Large Number Gather; Poor Phone Service Is Discussed.

One of the largest gatherings of South San Francisco Merchants' Association members that has yet attended a meeting was present at the city hall Wednesday evening. It was an enthusiastic gathering, all present entering into the discussions of the different matters of interest to the merchants of the town.

One of the first problems coming up for consideration was the securing of better telephone service for this city. Practically every merchant present voiced complaint against the poor service he was getting. Two officials of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company, J. J. Dennison and H. S. Davis, were present, and after listening to the complaints promised that everything possible would be done to improve the service.

A committee was appointed to learn what the merchants could do toward co-operating with the local lodge of Moose to make the coming convention, to be held in this city November 11th and 12th, a success. A. T. Arndt, Pasquale Santini, and Charles Schurk were appointed on this committee. Sam Curusis, Lawrence Vincenzini, and Mr. Santini were appointed a committee to take up any steps that the association might take to help the local post of the American Legion in its plans for an Armistice Day carnival which the post is planning for the same time.

The association members decided to secure the services of an expert decorator to trim the windows of the association members for the affairs. It was also voted to pay $25 out of the association funds for a page in the souvenir booklet-program the Moose are planning to issue during the convention.

All members reported enthusiastically as to the progress of the "Trade at Home" campaign now under way, and stated that their patrons were showing much interest and nearly always asking for the coupons in making purchases.

ENJOYABLE TIME PROMISED AT FIREMEN'S DANCE IN REDWOOD

The young folks of the peninsula are looking forward to next Saturday evening, when the Redwood City firemen hold their annual grand ball in Foresters' Hall. The committee in charge has been working diligently for weeks preparing for the event and is now ready to assure all attending an enjoyable time. Lamb's six-piece jazz orchestra will furnish the music for the evening.

LIBERTY BAND GIVES SUCCESSFUL DANCE

The Liberty Band of this city gave a most successful dance at Fraternal Hall last Saturday evening as a benefit for the families of the miners who perished in the Argonaut mine disaster. There was a large crowd in attendance from this city and Colma.

BRIDGE ENGINEER ARRIVES ON GROUND

F. E. Webb of New York, Head of Big Engineering Firm, Here to Study Coyote Point Location.

The project to secure a transbay bridge from Coyote Point near San Mateo to Alvarado on the eastern shore of the bay, has received a decided impetus within the last few days by the arrival in San Francisco Saturday of Frank Elbridge Webb, one of the best-known bridge engineers of the country. Webb is head of the Benschel Engineering Company of New York, the concern that has undertaken not only to build the bridge but to finance it as well.

Webb has spent several busy days this week going over the ground carefully and in looking into traffic conditions on the peninsula and on the east side of the bay. Webb was born in San Francisco and is fairly well acquainted with business conditions in this region.

Monday evening at the banquet of the Three Cities Chamber of Commerce in Burlingame, Webb was introduced to the assemblage amid an ovation. Webb told his audience that he was in a position financially, technically and physically to construct the Little Coyote Point bridge.

It is reported the transbay bridge project is being received with great enthusiasm in Hayward, Alvarado, Pleasanton, San Leandro and other southern Alameda county cities. The Hayward Chamber of Commerce will conduct the Webb party over the terrain where the bridge head in Alameda county will probably be located. This announcement was made Monday by W. H. Lee, manager of the Hayward Chamber.

O. CAMPBELL, FORMER P. M., GETS GOOD POSITION

The following letter, received Wednesday by The Enterprise from Senator Samuel M. Shortridge, contains information that will be welcomed in this city where Othel Campbell, former superintendent of the local postoffice, has many friends. Mr. Campbell proved himself capable and accommodating during the nearly two years he was in charge in this city, and all who knew him here will wish him well in his new position. The letter follows:

Editor The Enterprise, South San Francisco, Calif.—My Dear Mr. Speed: I beg to advise you that as a result of the negotiations recently completed successfully for the establishment of an individual postoffice at South San Francisco, arrangements have been made with Colonel James E. Power, postmaster at San Francisco, to employ Mr. Othel Campbell, former superintendent of the South San Francisco branch, at the San Francisco postoffice. The order approving Mr. Campbell's appointment to this grade has just been signed by the postmaster-general.

Sincerely yours,
SAMUEL M. SHORTIDGE.

POTTER FAMILY HAS EXPERIENCE WITH MAD DOG

Mrs. I. H. Potter, wife of I. H. Potter, president of the Bank of South San Francisco, had a thrilling experience with a mad dog Thursday of last week that will remain long in her memory. The animal was a young bulldog, a pet of the Potter children, and had been playing with them up to the time Mrs. Potter suddenly noticed it was acting queerly. Seeing that the dog was apparently having a fit, Mrs. Potter hurried her children out of the room it was in and closed the door. Mrs. Potter then telephoned for D. W. Ratto to the bank to come and look at the dog. In the meantime the beast grew more and more violent in its actions, running in circles and frothing at the mouth. Mrs. Potter had sought refuge on a chair to keep away from it, when Frank Gould, delivery man for Carmody's store, arrived. By this time the dog's face was a mass of foam. Gould seized a piece of rope clothesline and lassoed the animal, then dispatched it. There seems no doubt that it had rabies and that Mrs. Potter and her children had a narrow escape.

THREE MORE IN LUCK WITH PRIZES

ROSIE COLOMBO, W. J. GREENE AND C. PARIANI HOLD THE PRIZE WINNING NUMBERS AT THE MERCHANTS' DRAWING.

Rosie Colombo, C. Pariani and W. J. Greene were the holders of the lucky numbers in the drawing of the South San Francisco Merchants' Association prizes at the Royal Theater Wednesday evening. Miss Colombo won $5 with No. 663, C. Pariani won $2 with No. 496, while W. J. Greene won the $3 prize with No. 2902. Miss Colombo was on hand and received her prize in merchandise orders. The orders for the other two prizes are still at The Enterprise office waiting for their owners. All that is necessary to do to secure them is to bring in the ticket with the number matching the number on the stub drawn from the locked box. These numbers were drawn on the stage by Little Miss Mary Cavassa.

There was a good attendance at the theater when the drawing took place. The residents of this city are taking more and more interest in the weekly drawings and in the coupons themselves. Members of the association were unanimous in stating at Wednesday night's meeting that their patrons are asking for the coupons with their purchases and were showing the liveliest interest in the big "Trade at Home" campaign which they are a part of.

Again a warning may be issued to those who draw the prizes to hold on to their tickets until the big drawing just before Christmas. At this time a number of big prizes will be awarded to those holding the greatest number of these tickets.

Nearly every store in South San Francisco is now giving the little blue coupons. Ask for them when making your purchases. The members of the Merchants' Association are anxious that every purchaser should get coupons, but sometimes the clerks forget to give them out. Ask for them when making a purchase and insist on getting them. Then, as soon as you have $10 worth, exchange them at any store of an association member and get a numbered certificate. Then tear off the numbered stub and deposit it in the locked box at Scampini's store. You may be the holder of a lucky number that will secure for you a prize in merchandise orders that means a large share of the money spent in the original purchases is doubled in purchasing value and in goods secured.

Strangely enough, a crooked man never gets the right slant on life.

HAS NARROW ESCAPE AT SAN BRUNO CROSSING

M. D. Moon, an elderly man, whose home is in Saratoga, is at the South San Francisco Hospital with a number of broken bones, but is thanking his lucky stars that he is not now in his grave following an accident at San Bruno street car crossing Monday evening about 5:30 o'clock. Moon's car, a beautiful new Packard roadster, is at the Cabin Garage at San Bruno, a mass of wreckage.

The accident happened while Moon, who has an office in San Francisco, was on his way to his home in Saratoga. According to Mr. Moon's story, as he approached the crossing he saw the flagman drop his hand and walk away. Thinking the coast clear, Mr. Moon drove on the tracks directly in the path of the electric car. The car struck his machine with terrific force, reducing it almost to scrap iron. That its occupant was not killed is a miracle. As it is, he suffered a broken collar bone, a broken elbow and a broken hip, all of them very serious breaks. Apparently he suffered no internal injuries.

The front end of the street car was badly wrecked.

Moon is president of the Superior Land Company, with offices in the Mills building.

HERE'S A WAY TO GET MANY MERCHANTS' ASSOCIATION COUPONS

The Enterprise is giving these coupons along with other members of the Merchants' Association. When renewing your subscription or taking a new one The Enterprise will give you double the value of the money paid in coupons.

Think of it! A year's subscription to your home-town paper costs you $2.50 and you will receive coupons to the value of $5! If you are paid up, send The Enterprise to some friend for six months or for one year and get the coupons that may win you one of the prizes to be given every two weeks, or will give you a big start toward the certificates that may capture one of the big prizes for you later on. Two yearly subscriptions will cost you $5, and The Enterprise will present you with a $10 certificate. This, too, in addition to the tickets that will admit two persons each to popular San Francisco theaters. Can you imagine anything more liberal? Pay your subscription today. You may be the winner of the first prize.

AND HERE'S SOMETHING OF INTEREST TO THOSE WHO WIN THE PRIZE MERCHANDISE ORDERS: THE ENTERPRISE WILL ACCEPT THESE ORDERS IN PAYMENT FOR A SUBSCRIPTION OR FOR PRINTING.

Stories of Great Scouts

HOW "LIVER-EATIN'" JOHNSON GOT HIS NAME

Among the scouts who were with Gen. Nelson A. Miles, when that officer inflicted his crushing defeat upon the Sioux chief, Crazy Horse, at the battle of Wolf Mountain, Mont., in 1877 was one bearing the strange name of "Liver-Eatin'" Johnson. Johnson was a powerful Norwegian, weighing more than 300 pounds and standing six feet, three inches in his moccasin-clad feet. He had a great shock of golden hair of which he was very proud—so much so, that he refused to wear a hat, and when he went into battle with this golden mane in the wind, he looked like an ancient Norse viking.

Johnson had won his name in a gruesome way. Two stories about this are told, differing slightly in detail, but agreeing in the main facts. One tells how a party of Indians had raided a trading post on the Musselshell River, but were driven off with heavy loss. It is said that Johnson, in a spirit of devilish bravado, cut out the livers of several of the dead warriors and actually ate them.

The other story seeks to justify Johnson's act. A Cheyenne chief had raided and burned Johnson's camp while he was away on a trapping expedition. When he returned and saw the ruins, he swore that he would kill the Cheyenne and eat his liver. Later he made good his threat. Either account may be correct, so far as details are concerned. At any rate, he was ever afterward known as "Liver-Eatin'" Johnson.

Johnson's inseparable companion was "X" Beldier of Montana vigilante fame. Beldier disapproved of Johnson's lack of headgear and called him a "yaller-headed injun," because, as he said, "every decent white man wears some sort of coverin' for his scalp." But Johnson was firm in his convictions, and in the fight with Crazy Horse's Sioux he justified himself—to his own satisfaction, at least.

As Beldier and Johnson charged up the snow-clad slopes of Wolf Mountain that morning against entrenched Indians, a bullet cut a furrow through Liver-Eatin's hair, "like a pair of red-hot sheep shears," as he said.

"Now you see!" he exclaimed to his "pardner." "If I'd had a hat on, it'd bin plumb ruined!"

Little is known of Johnson's later history. He was a scout at Fort Custer 1881, when the young chief Sword Bearer tried to stir up the Crows against the whites and scouted for the troops during that brief war. After that he seems to drop out of history.

Jungle Man Comes Wearing Gloves.

This is a new and most recent picture of Battling Siki, the Tunis Algeria jungle man who knocked out the European champion, Georges Carpentier, in six rounds at Paris, and is now coming to the U.S. He wants to fight Dempsey, but will be forced to show his class against some lesser light, maybe Harry Greb or Kid Norfolk.

REALLY WOULDN'T DO AT ALL

Blunt Railroad Owner Simply Couldn't See Any Sense in an Automatic Signal System.

A certain western railroad which has not yet been "reorganized" is still owned and operated by the blunt-spoken old lumberman who built it. Last year, after a particularly severe accident upon it, the agent for an automatic block signal system called and tried to get a contract for installation.

The old lumberman examined the device attentively and seemed much interested.

"Your chief engineer recommends it highly," said the agent. "He told me to use his name with you and he would see you later."

"Well," said the lumberman, "I guess it is a pretty machine. I like to sit here and see it work myself, it's so all-fired sure. But come to using it on my road—now, young feller, I've been running a railroad some longer'n you and I'll tell you something."

"Accidents is bound to happen about once in so often, no matter what you do. I've got three brakemen in jail now and I've sworn to hang the next one, and the public is pretty well satisfied. But what satisfaction is it going to be for any one if I go to work and hang an old automatic machine?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

REMINDED COLONEL OF HOME

Use of Word "Tote" Brought to Virginian Joyous Memories of His Boyhood Days.

Colonel Culpepper came from Virginia so many years ago that he thinks he is a New Yorker, and he has lost most of his Virginia speech. Occasionally, when excited, he uses a word that is seldom heard in this city, but generally his speech is correct in syntax and orthoepy.

"I was made homesick today," he said, "when I saw a word I often heard in my youth, but which is seldom used in the North. It was the word 'tote.' Some man who does business on the cash and carry plan has named his store the 'U-tote Service.' Tote is a mighty good word, and when I was a boy we used it regularly. It is good Elizabethan English. Up here you use the word 'carry.' Down in Virginia we use that word in a broader sense. We carry a horse to water, carry a girl to church or home therefrom. If we mean to take up and convey bodily we say tote."

"The store sign took me back to my boyhood—back to the time I toted a girl's school books when I carried her to school."—New York Correspondence of the Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Building a Church in a Day.

Rome was not built in a day, but then Rome was very much behind the times! On the outskirts of Chicago a feat that would have astonished the Romans has been performed, and it sounds a little startling even to our ears. A contract was signed on a Friday for the building of a church. The document stipulated that the church should be ready for dedication on the Sunday following. Just one day was left for the putting up of a building which was to hold about three thousand people! At dawn on the Saturday morning the workmen started, and at seven o'clock that evening the men were putting in windows, doors, and electric light. No floor was laid, but by midnight all else was done and the dedication services were held the following day. This feat had a parallel in Pontiac county, Que., about forty years ago.

Horse Rode on Cowcatcher.

A tall story was brought into New Westminster, B. C., by the crew of an electric railway train, Fraser Valley branch. They said that as they waited at the "Y" for a westbound C. N. R. freight to get on to the bridge they saw a horse jump off the cowcatcher of the C. N. R. locomotive. It ran down the B. C. electric railway track toward their train, halted until the C. N. R. train went past, then turned and galloped back to the south shore; stumbled once on the ties, then regained its footing and vanished. The story goes on to say that the freight had run through a band of horses at Hope and this one had been riding on the cowcatcher for several miles.

Red-Beaked Sparrows Pets.

A dab of rouge on the beak makes all the difference in the world in the value of sparrows. Without it the bird must forage for food and be rated as a low caste resident of any feathered community. But when its bill is a high shade of vermillion, a lipstick red that won't come off, a sparrow is a house pet so desirable that 4,000 of them have just been imported.

They are Java sparrows, but they are just sparrows, in size and in twitter, usually slaty gray in color. Occasionally they are pure white.

Hardened.

"You wrote me," protested the summer boarder, "that mosquitoes never bothered you."

"They don't," said Mr. Cobble. "I've been living here more than 30 years. In that length of time a man can get used to anything."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Generously Invited.

Appropos of the death of Sir William Harcourt, who had long outlived the intense unpopularity of his early years, Sir David Hunter Blair says that at the time of his passing it seemed almost legendary to recall how three members of Parliament had once resolved to invite to dinner the individual they disliked most in the world. Covers were laid for six, but only one guest turned up—Sir William Harcourt, who had been invited by all three.

A Full-Length Vamp Makes a Stronger, Better Wearing Shoe

The ability of a shoe to give you months of daily wear is determined by the amount of good leather which is put into it. The more leather—the longer wear. This is one reason why Edmonds "Foot-Fitter" Shoes hold such a remarkable record for long service.

"Foot-Fitters" have a full length vamp with a sole leather box toe. This feature is not found in any other brand. The full length vamp prevents the tips of the shoes from ripping, strengthens the box and makes a smooth, unbroken inner surface.

There is no skimping of materials in "Foot-Fitters." You can quickly see this by examining a "Foot Fitter" shoe which has been cut in two. Come in and see this shoe here. You will then know what your dollars are buying.

The local football season will be ushered in next Sunday at 10 a. m. with a game between the P. O. M. and Y. M. I. teams.

Hans and Max Mueidner, who have been at Los Angeles for several months past, are expected back the latter part of the month.

Ex-Trustee Thomas McConnell, having apparently regained his former good health after a long siege of illness, was seen on our streets last week renewing old acquaintances.

Mrs. Leavitt of Fourth Addition left this week for Grant's Pass, Ore., accompanied by Mrs. Martin Olson, who had been her guest for several weeks past. She expects to spend the winter up north.

E. D. Christie, who with his wife and son, James, started out on a motor trip East early last summer, was in our midst Saturday, having returned months ahead of schedule, owing to the death of a close relative.

Mrs. M. Daneri of this place was taken to the French Hospital in San Francisco last week, where she underwent a serious operation on Saturday. According to latest reports the patient is improving nicely.

Why not build a home to suit? We have some choice lots at reasonable prices; also houses, furnished and unfurnished, to suit your purse from $650 to $7000. Our word is as good as a bond. Wm. Maurer, San Bruno, Calif.—Adv.

It is reported that Trustee Edwards has bought the old Grizes place in Third Addition. However, he will not be able to take possession of it for another six months, inasmuch as the present tenants hold a lease on the place.

Mr. and Mrs. John Weber of Chico, a newly married couple on their honeymoon trip, paid San Bruno a brief visit Monday in company with Mrs. Phil Drescher of San Francisco. While here they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Drescher and Mr. and Mrs. Mat Drescher. The bride, formerly Miss Helen Drescher, is a daughter of Frank Drescher of Chico, a brother of Nick and Mat of this place.

PROCEEDINGS OF CITY TRUSTEES

With all members save Trustee Grundy present, the board got down to business in good time, and made it "snappy."

City Recorder Custer reported $475 collected in fines during the month of September.

A petition was presented by Mrs. Charles Collins, signed by eighty-six residents of Fourth Addition, requesting that stores be permitted along the highway in that section. The matter will be given due consideration in conjunction with the proposed amendment of the zoning ordinance.

Building permits were granted to:

L. H. Arthur, for a dwelling in Fourth Addition; Prosper Bou, to build addition to barn for J. Zaro; Mr. Burris, to put concrete foundation under dwelling in First Addition; Mrs. Charles Collins, to build addition to dwelling in Fourth Addition.

Unusually many communications were read and given due consideration. Among the more important were:

One by the water board, suggesting a new feed pipe to relieve the water shortage in Fourth Addition, same to cost approximately $150. Favorable action was taken.

Another by the American Legion, inviting the city to participate in the Armistice Day celebration at Pacific City. Final action was deferred until the next regular meeting.

President Hatch of the local bank notified the board that the proffer for the use of California Hall for a city hall was off, the building having been sold.

Mrs. Bellamy protested against the fill-in on the south side of her home by the Municipal Improvement Company. Relief was promised.

Mrs. Langer of Fifth Addition called attention to the almost impassable condition of the street in her neighborhood. Street Commissioner Edwards has the matter in hand.

Hy Christman was appointed to succeed E. Gibouret on the board of health, and incidentally becomes plumbing inspector.

In the matter of the advertising signs on the J. J. Smith premises, City Attorney Mason suggested that they be replaced. The marshal was instructed to attend to the matter.

CARD OF THANKS

I hereby wish to extend my heartfelt thanks to all who extended their sympathy and kind assistance to me and my children during our recent bereavement in the death of my beloved wife. JAMES S. FISCHER.

A Difference.

She was complaining of his meanness, and instanced the unsatisfactory quality of her engagement ring.

"You wouldn't notice these things if you really cared for me," he told her. "I always thought love was blind."

She smiled wanly. "Yes, darling," she replied, "but not stone blind."—Kansas City Star.

$30.00 rent per month amounts to $3600 in ten years, and you have nothing but rent receipts for that amount. The man who owns his own home not only saves rent but makes money by the increased value in his property.

RICHARDSON—THE MAN

How did Friend W. Richardson do it? That is the burning question. He held no big meetings, hired no brass bands, led no torchlight processions, burned no red fire, subsidized no great newspapers, made no rhetorical flourishes and spent no large sum of money. How, then, did he manage to win? No secret at all, says he. He purposely avoided all the ordinary, hackneyed political campaign methods, and, instead, went direct to the people with his message. In his rather old-fashioned automobile which, he tells us, has "seen no less than five years of service," he traveled into every nook and corner of the state; met the voters face to face, told them how the money which they were paying out in taxes was being wasted, and how he could and would, if made governor, put a stop to such waste and thus put a stop to the rapid and steady increase in their taxes.

It is conclusively evident that the people liked his campaign methods and believed his campaign promises. It is also evident that the people are tired unto death of bearing the constantly increasing and terribly oppressive burden of taxation, and are determined to take measures calculated to secure relief therefrom. Those who know Richardson well, say that he will provide this relief. That his campaign slogan of economy was no empty promise, no "molasses to catch flies." That when he talked economy, he meant economy; and that when he takes office next January, he will DO economy.

As to the manner of man that he is: that is well indicated by his conduct since the election. Despite a victory which, accomplished as it was in the face of colossal odds, was enough to have turned many a good man's head, he refused to depart one iota from his regular habits or conduct. He declined even to wait to receive the congratulations of his friends and the plaudits of those who became his friends when his election was assured, but went off about his business as usual, giving his first attention to the duties of his present office and then going into seclusion with his family. Neither did he issue any manifestoes or proclamations concerning his victory. The only statement he made immediately following the primary election contained less than one hundred words. In it he thanked his supporters, and said that he would continue to preach economy until the final election; after which, he would put it to practice. As is plain to be seen this man who in appearance resembles Grover Cleveland, does not waste words—he is a doer rather than a talker; something so exceptional in a seeker after political office as to brand him a most unusual man, and to inspire confidence in his intention and ability to keep his promises.

Thus, his election means much to California, and by way of example to other states as well. It means that a serious, well-ordered effort will be made to put and keep the affairs of California on a business basis; and it may well mean encouragement to other men in other states to lead battles to lift the dead hand of oppressive taxation from the backs of the people.

AN IMPORTANT QUESTION

Railroads are cutting fares to compete with motor vehicles operating on publicly maintained highways.

Indications are that under such competition train service will have to be cut. The railroads face the same problem in carrying freight.

The public will serve itself best if it saves the railroads from unprofitable operation and bankruptcy.

Steel tracks and powerful trains are the real process for handling inland traffic, and if the railroads are starved by lack of traffic, the public service will suffer.

In the situation there is this query: Should the public tax itself to maintain highways on which, for private profit, motor vehicles operate on a free right of way, while the railroads operate on an expensive privately built right of way and in addition pay heavy taxes on the valuation of such right of way?

The right of way and its maintenance is one of the heavy costs of railroad operation. It is a cost that motor vehicles competing with the rail lines escape, save for the comparatively light tax now imposed.

Overloaded trucks do more than anything else to destroy the highways, and the highways cost the taxpayer a huge sum. To save the public highways from destruction will cost another huge and constantly growing sum.

The problem is how to balance the relations between the railroads and commercial vehicles carrying traffic on the free highways, and is a very delicate and important question.

Do you invest your savings in bonds? If so, buy only gilt-edged ones from substantial houses and then hold on to them. Don't become uneasy and unload the moment they go down a few points on the market. A bond that is worth having will pay par at maturity, and in the meantime it pays the interest provided for on its face. Speculators force them down and then buy them up in large quantities. They get the gravy while you get the experience.

It is a fact that lazy men do very little complaining. It is too much of an effort.

The secret of success is no secret at all. Every failure can tell you all about it.

Set your mark high in the world and then climb up to it. It won't come down.

It may be proved with much certainty that God intends no man to live in this world without working; but it seems to me no less evident that He intends every man to be happy in his work. It is written, "In the sweat of thy brow," but it was never written, "In the breaking of thy heart," thou shalt eat bread.—John Ruskin.

HELPFUL SUGGESTIONS

To the small town or country housewife who has not easy access to a market there is a great satisfaction in the knowledge that no matter who comes she is prepared for an emergency. This first aid in an emergency is a well-stocked shelf kept filled with foods which may be used in a hurry call when husband brings home unexpected company.

With canned soups or home canned soups or broths one may make a good dish for the beginning of a meal, then with a jar of salad dressing some sort of a salad is usually easy to prepare. If one has time a berry pie makes a fine dessert; or a shortcake, using canned fruit, is always a favorite. The foods used will depend, of course, upon the taste of the family, and if one is to be prepared the canned food, whatever it is, should be replaced at the first opportunity.

A few cans of fish, such as salmon and tuna, sardines and clams, if liked, some jars of sliced dried beef, and bacon, peanut butter, cans of corn and tomatoes, with a bottle of good salad dressing, which may be stretched by the addition of cream, a box or jar of cheese, are a few of the foods which will be most commonly used, not forgetting several cans of good soup. A most delicious tomato sauce may be made in a hurry from a can of tomato soup, using it with cold meat or hamburger steak, if at hand.

When taking dishes to a church supper or hall, mark them with small bits of adhesive tape with the name written in ink. This will not wash off at all easily, and one may identify one's property with little difficulty.

When baking a crust for a filled pie, bake it on the bottom of the pan, pricking it lightly with a fork; this keeps the crust from blistering.

Scotch Thrift.

In a talk on thrift a banker told a story about a Scotch farmer who, on frequent shopping trips in town, would hitch his horse on Main street, and having securely attached the feed bag would lift a hen from the wagon and tie her with a stout cord to one of the shafts, in such a manner that she would be able to pick up every bit of the oats the horse might drop while wrestling with the feed bag.—Judge.

Richard Lloyd Jones tells How To Play The Game

IN the closing game of a minor league two teams were contending for the pennant. The bleachers were crowded with rival fans. The score was 5 to 4. The team at bats was four. The last half of the 9th inning was in play. There were two out, three men on bases, their best batter up.

He found the ball and sent it far afield. The race of the bases started. The left fielder ran desperately to get the ball. He met it in the tall grass close to the far fence as the batter was on his way home, the three base runners before him.

Into the tall grass the ball and the fielder fell. The grandstand rose; a hush held them. "Did he catch it?" was the thought on thousands of tongues. Out from the tall grass into which he had stumbled the fielder rose, holding high the ball. A mighty cheer arose. The four runners had touched home plate without a score. The fielder who held the ball had given his team the pennant. The cheers continued, wave after wave of cheers—until—the fielder lowered his hand that held the ball and raised the other hand in protest, dropped his head with humiliation and shook it "no."

At once the thousand eyes upon him read the sign. The ball fell to earth, not into his hands. In his race in the high grass he had stumbled where instantly he could put his hand upon it. No one but himself and his God saw it.

One never-to-be-detected falsehood would give his team the victory for which through all the long hot summer they had battled. Temptation spurred him but in the nobler sober second thought, conscience triumphed and HE PLAYED THE GAME ON THE SQUARE.

Victory was turned into defeat. But only for the moment. The hush that came over the grandstand, as they comprehended the act, first broke into cheers for the real winners—and then—the finer conscience and the true sportsmanship that the player had expressed possessed his disappointed rooters. They found that VICTORY was not wrapped up in the pennant. The pennant at best was but a rag of a thing. The real victory was in playing the game on the square. And both the contending fans broke out in a cheer such as few diamond heroes have ever heard.

The fielder came in, and as he came his head lifted from its depressed pose and he faced the throng—THEIR HERO.

The great American game is a builder of men. It is not the exhibition games that count the most. It is the game that is staged in the school ground and in the vacant lot that serves us best. The real game is played on the diamond that is not encircled by banner-bearing bleachers. The real game is played not on fields where all eyes may see. The real game is played in the far out field, in the uncut grass where ball and player meet unseen.

He who can find victory there has learned the lesson of life that the great American game has to teach. He is the player who is a MAN.

poem by UNCLE JOHN

The dreamy eyes that used to haunt me, have ceased to thrill my time-worn heart; no optic artist now can daunt me, no matter how she acts the part. I've lost the keen appreciation that lurks within the youthful breast; I still have spells of palpitation, but that's because I don't digest.

I hate to own that I'm a cynic,—that I have old and crusty grown, but I can pass the PAST THE HEY-DAY eye-brow clinic, the same as if I'd turned to stone. There's nothing to the pensive languish that Maude turns on at sweet sixteen,—and still, it used to cause me anguish, when I was callow, fresh, and green. . . . I've reached the age of sere and yellow; I've grown to be a sort of crank. You know the years will gird a fellow like iron hoops around a tank. I envy not the mushy youngster that flounders in romantic stage. I'd rather be a whiskered songster, and smear my dope on printed page.

HOMEY PHILOSOPHY for 1922

IF industry is to be revived, we need the alien mob to work the mines, and do the rest of the toil that must be done. Therefore we should let the aliens in. "If we want the wheels of prosperity to turn, we should keep the American workman free from competition from Europe." Therefore we should keep aliens out. "If happiness is to come to the land we must seek an educated citizenship. Therefore we should have a strict educational test for the alien." "If we want peace on earth, we should safeguard our shore against intrusion from cunning agitators found among these highly educated but destitute foreigners. Therefore we should admit only workers who are built for work." Try these recipes for political speeches from your cart tail. Any one of them will get a round of applause. You can always fool the fellow who knows only "We, Us & Company" and never thinks of You.

Wood of Indiana Gets Big Surprise.

Congressman Will Wood of Indiana received a jolt while campaigning in Maine during the recent senatorial contest. He was speaking in a small town near the Canadian line one evening and had reached a warm stage of his talk, when a man in the crowd brought him to a sudden stop by crying in a loud voice: "Here, here." Thinking the fellow was using that method of questioning the correctness of his statement, Wood squared his shoulders and with increased emphasis repeated his argument. The more earnest he became, the more often he was interrupted with "here, here." He gave the best he had, talking half an hour longer than usual, in an effort to convince the doubting Thomases who annoyed him.

On the way to the hotel he spoke to the local chairman about the hostility of the audience. That functionary looked at him in blank amazement. "Why, man," he said, "what on earth are you talking about? That audience was delighted with your speech. You made Republican voters by the hundred. Didn't you notice their frequent interruptions of approval?"

"Do you call that 'here, here' stuff approval?" retorted Wood. Then it dawned on the chairman that Wood was mixed on that brand of applause and mistook "hear, hear" for "here, here."

"That's one on me," admitted Wood when explanations were made.

HAVE NARROW ESCAPE FROM SERIOUS INJURY

Mrs. R. Speed and children, together with Mrs. Elizabeth Coffinberry and Miss Mary Tomaschek, had a narrow escape from serious injury or death last Friday afternoon when driving south on the highway near San Bruno. A large Pierce-Arrow car belonging to Mrs. Christensen, widow of the lumberman who was drowned recently, crashed into the machine driven by Mrs. Speed and threw the occupants into the street. They suffered many bruises and cuts, but apparently no serious injuries. Mrs. Coffinberry spent several days in bed following the accident. John Sawyer, the driver of the other car and chauffeur for Mrs. Christensen, assumed entire blame for the accident.

Experience is necessary to success, but a lot of "experiences" are not.

Smyrna Burning As Turks Massacre Christians.

First picture to reach America showing Smyrna in flames from torches of the triumphant Turks under Kemal Pasha. Thousands are believed to have perished in the flames and from swords of the Turks.

"Uncle Joe" Talks About Boots.

Several members of congress were sitting on the western steps of the capitol the other evening watching an unusually beautiful sunset beyond the wooded hills of Virginia as they chatted upon various subjects. The talking and looking, however, came to a sudden halt when a stranger strolled by wearing a pair of old-fashioned cowhide boots with his pants (no, not trousers) stuffed into the tops.

"Boys," slowly remarked "Uncle Joe," "that's the first pair of cowhides I've seen in Washington in a dozen or so years. How well do I remember the old days when I wore them, and greased them every little while with tallow! And, oh, what a job it was to work up a shine on them out in the woodshed when I wanted to go on a little courting trip!

"By the by, do you realize that a considerable affinity exists between men and boots? They both have like weaknesses and good qualities, and are similarly affected under certain circumstances.

"Boots go on feet; so do men.

"Boots have soles; so have men.

"Boots sometimes get tight; so do men.

"A boot will shine if polished; so will a man.

"A boot to get on needs a pull; so does a man.

"Some boots have red tops; so have some men.

"Some boots lose their soles; so do some men.

"Some boots are imitation calf; so are some men.

"Boots are tanned; so are men—mostly in their youth.

"Some boots can't stand water; neither can some men.

"When a boot is well soaked it is a hard case; so is a man.

"A boot when old gets wrinkled and hard; so does a man.

"A boot to be of much account must have a mate; so must a man.

"A boot when well heeled always feels comfortable; so does a man.

"The less understanding there is in a boot the bigger it feels; so it is with a man."

Not Waste Paper Yet.

Edison Marshall of Medford, Ore., who won the $500 O. Henry short story prize for 1921, said at a congratulatory dinner:

"The short story writer has a hard time of it at first. This makes him bitter and hopeless. Once in the old, bad days I said to the woman who cleaned my attic room:

"There was a lot of paper on my desk. What has become of it?"

"I threw it out," said the woman.

"I thought it was waste paper."

"No," said I. "It wasn't waste paper. I hadn't written anything on it yet."—Portland Oregonian.

Embarrassing.

Mr. Peet, a very shy young man, was introduced to a fascinating young woman who, misunderstanding his name, addressed him constantly as Mr. Peters, much to his distress.

Finally summoning up courage he remonstrated.

"Oh, don't call me Peters—call me Peet."

"Ah, but I don't know you well enough, Mr. Peters," said the girl, blushing as she withdrew behind her fan.—Mobile Register.

Old-fashioned women wonder why it is that some girls who could "just die dancing," don't.

ATTORNEY EXPLAINS SECURING OF TITLES

The following article is from an address delivered at a recent bankers' convention by City Attorney J. W. Coleberd. It is published here because it contains much of interest to any person who owns or is contemplating the ownership of real estate. Such a person would do well to read the article carefully.

Advantages of Title Insurance

In transferring land the public has become accustomed to three systems by which evidence of title is furnished. The first is the abstract system, the second is the statement commonly called "certificate of title" and the last is title insurance. Very many people have unbounded confidence in an abstract of title when accompanied by the opinion of a lawyer.

An abstract of title is a concise history of the title as appearing on the public records. Matters not of record, which affect the title, are never covered in an abstract. Necessarily when a lawyer gives an opinion upon an abstract he is confined to what is contained in it. If the abstractor has set forth the essentials of all the instruments of record affecting the title to the land in question, he has not been negligent. If the lawyer, to whom the abstract is submitted for his opinion, uses the care and skill which men in the legal profession commonly possess and exercise in such matters, he is not negligent. But neither the abstractor nor the lawyer is a guarantor of titles. Notwithstanding as good an abstract as was ever prepared and an opinion by an acknowledged expert in the law of real property certifying the title to be perfect, it may fail. Often buyers, relying on such assurance, have lost great sums of money. Very frequently abstracts present a situation where two lawyers equally learned in the law of land titles may differ.

A certificate of title is merely an opinion based on the record. It is usually made by an abstractor. In the preparation of such an instrument he combines the function of examining the public records and that of passing upon the title. In the former, to be efficient, he should be equipped with an adequate abstract plant and should also have sufficient information to properly guide him in forming his opinion. As in the case of the abstract coupled with the opinion of a competent lawyer, matters not presented by the record are not taken into account, and although the certificate of title may recite that the title is free and clear, free and clear of incumbrances, still it may fail and the buyer may be subjected to serious loss.

It is a popular delusion that in such evidence security is to be found in titles. Many people are thoroughly convinced by any document, bound up in an artistic cover and well decorated with several colors of printer's ink, which employs that magical word "certify." Many cannot distinguish between "abstract" and "certificate of title," but rest comfortably at night when possessed or either. Many people mistakenly believe that an abstractor is required by law to have certain essential qualifications and that these are legal safeguards which afford full protection to those who employ him. By bitter experience many persons have found that there are defects in title which the abstract does not disclose and are not noted as exceptions in the preliminary report leading up to a certificate of title. They discover that a defective title is financial quicksand. Some of these undisclosed defects in titles will be noticed specifically later.

In section 453v of the Civil Code of California, title insurance is defined as follows:

Any written contract or instrument purporting to show the title to real property, or furnish information relative thereto, which shall in express terms purport to insure or guarantee such title or the correctness of such information, shall be deemed a policy of title insurance.

In the case of Foerenbach vs. German-American Title and Trust Company, 217 Pa. St. 231, the following statement is made with reference to title insurance: "Title insurance is not mere guesswork nor is it a wager. It is based upon careful examination of the muniments of title, and the exercise of judgment by skilled conveyancers. The quality of a title is a matter of opinion, as to which even men learned in the law of real estate may differ. A policy of title insurance means the opinion of the company which issues it, as to the validity of the title, backed by an agreement to make that opinion good, in case it should be mistaken and loss should result in consequence to the insured.

It must be borne in mind that the real subject of insurance is not the concrete thing, but the interest which the one to be indemnified has in the concrete thing. When an applicant applies to an insurance company for a policy covering a fee title to a particular estate or interest, it is for the company then, to examine the evidence of his title, and say whether or not it would assume the risk of making good to him the injury which would result, in case his claim of title to the entire interest should prove defective. And when a policy is issued insuring his title, the company thereby says to the insured: You are, in our judgment, the owner in fee of the entire interest in this property and we will back our opinion by agreeing to hold you harmless, up to the amount of the policy, in case for any reason our judgment in this respect should be mistaken. The risks of title insurance end where the risks of other kinds of insurance begin. Title insurance is designed to protect the insured and save him harmless from any loss arising through defects, liens or incumbrances that may be in existence, affecting the title when the policy is issued. It does not protect against any claims arising after the issuance of the policy.

In California title insurance companies are subject to and must comply with all the requirements of the insurance laws and the rules and regulations of the state insurance department. No title insurance company can engage in business until it has obtained from the insurance commissioner his certificate showing compliance with the requirements of law. The insurance commissioner is empowered to examine and inspect the financial condition and affairs of such companies relating to their insurance business and also to compel compliance with the provisions of the law. For the purposes of providing "a guarantee fund" to protect policy holders, each title insurance company must keep on deposit with the State Treasurer bonds in the amount of one hundred thousand dollars. In addition to this must be carried into a title insurance surplus fund until it shall amount to 25 per cent of the subscribed capital stock.

A company requiring certificates of title is not required to make such a deposit of securities or create a surplus fund. There is no state supervision in the insurance of its business. In many instances the assets of the corporation or individuals operating such a business consist of only a limited number of books of record and a small quantity of office furniture. If the abstract plant is operated by a natural person, the abstract books are exempt from execution. Under such circumstances what protection can the holder of a certificate of title have in the event he receives judgment on account of the negligence of the abstractor who prepared it?

Here are some of the things against which neither the abstract and lawyer's opinion nor the common certificate of title can protect, but against which title insurance furnishes the only protection:

Forgery

Sometimes this is done by forging the name of the grantee as the new grantor and at others by substituting another name for that of the grantee in an unrecorded deed. It is sufficient to say that no title can be founded upon a forged instrument.

Sometimes it happens that an owner of land forges a release of mortgage in order to make it appear that his title is unincumbered. A bank making a loan on the security of such an apparent title would be liable to loss.

Falsification of Record

It has sometimes happened that the public record has been deliberately falsified in such a manner that the name of another has been substituted for a grantee in a deed. Here one who relies on the record is misled.

False Impersonation

John Johnson negotiated a loan from A and produced an abstract showing certain property to be vested in John Johnson. Johnson gave a mortgage on this property to A to secure the loan. It developed that this John Johnson was not the owner. He was not guilty of forgery for he signed his own name to the mortgage. He was guilty of obtaining money under false pretenses. A lost his money because the mortgage was not the owner of the land.

Undisclosed Heirs and Devisees

At times it happens that the true heirs are not of a legal age at the probate proceeding and property is distributed to those who are not entitled to it. It is needless to say that a decree so distributing the property is void and can be set aside, notwithstanding the apparent goodness of the record.

In the event that minors are the true heirs, or devisees as the case may be, action in their behalf may be long postponed.

Posthumous Children

It frequently happens that a child is born after the death of its father. In case he left a will and the estate should be under ten thousand dollars in value, it would be entirely possible to have the estate distributed to the devisees named in the will before the birth of the child. Of course the decree of distribution would not be binding upon the after-born child. There are circumstances under which he might take the entire estate from the devisees. The record, in such a case, affords no protection.

Suppressed and Undiscovered Wills

It has frequently occurred that an estate has been distributed on the belief that the deceased died intestate and a will making a different disposition has been afterwards discovered. The devisees under the will prevail over those claiming by intestate succession. Purchasers from the latter have no security in the record.

Conveyance by Minors

In California the deed of a minor under eighteen years of age is void. It has been held in this state that, in the event of disaffirmance of a deed of trust by a minor under eighteen, no legal duty devolves upon such minor to restore the consideration received under such circumstances. In the event that a minor is over eighteen, as a condition to disaffirmance, he must restore the consideration, or pay its equivalent. It is easy to see what an unfair advantage a minor over eighteen may obtain by disaffirming a transaction where property has greatly increased in value.

Insanity

A, an insane person, conveys land to B, who afterwards mortgages it to C to secure a loan. Later a guardian of A is appointed and has the deed set aside on return of the consideration paid to A, notwithstanding the fact that the land has largely increased in value.

Deed Executed Under Power of Attorney

After death of Principal
It is a matter of common occurrence for an attorney to attempt to convey the name of his principal, after the death of the latter. When one who gives a power of attorney dies, the authority terminates and any instrument purporting to be executed pursuant to it is void. Sometimes considerable time elapses before anything appears of record to show the death of the principal.

Wrongful Delivery of Deed

This situation often happens in California. A makes a deed in form to convey the community property to his wife and acknowledges it. He leaves it in the hands of the recorder, who delivers it to his wife, but tells her to get it in the event of his death and record it. After his death she follows A's instructions. Then she conveys to B. A other heirs learn of the transaction and can succeed in claiming one-half of the land irrespective of the state of the record title.

Where a deed is left with a depository in escrow to be delivered to a grantee on his compliance with certain conditions and the delivery is unauthorized, no title is conveyed and an innocent purchaser is not protected.

An unauthorized filling of a blank for the name of a grantee by one in possession of a deed will not avail to pass title.

False Statements in Deed

A married man attempts to convey community property in California by a deed reciting that he is unmarried. Such a deed is voidable, but the record does not show this fact.

Inheritance Tax

Section 3 of the inheritance tax act provides that the inheritance tax is a lien on the property until paid. After five years the tax ceases to be a lien against a bona fide purchaser. If a deed were actually delivered in contemplation of death, or a deed were delivered to take effect after death, the public record would not show whether the transfer was taxable. A purchaser relying upon the record might be obliged to pay the inheritance tax, which should have been paid by another, in order to clear his title.

The foregoing are some of the risks against which title insurance is the only protection. The results of failure to secure adequate protection, not unlike those following the burning of an uninsured dwelling house, are sometimes pathetic and may be pictured thus:

"Think of the shock—the horror—of suddenly learning that there is a flaw in the title to your real estate—that the land upon which your home stands is not yours."

"Imagine just for a minute what that would mean to you now, or worse still, in your old age. Such things have happened. They are happening almost every day."

Another important thing to be considered is the fact that title insurance policies generally contain a covenant requiring the company to defend the title of the insured. Often unwarranted attacks are made upon titles. In defending title one is necessarily subjected to much expense. There is no obligation to defend the title on the part of the lawyer who gives a favorable opinion on the abstract or on the part of the abstractor who issues a certificate of title. In the event of success, the cost of litigation is a loss to the owner. If the title fails, recourse can be had against the lawyer or abstractor, as the case may be, if either has been negligent. But after prolonged litigation upon the title, the statute of limitations has generally run. As a cause of action arising from negligence and the buyer has lost not only his investment in the land but what he expended in defending his title.

One of the most practical features of title insurance is the fact that it facilitates closing sales of land and mortgage transactions. It is unnecessary to wait for the preparation of an abstract and for the attorney's opinion upon it, both of which may be delayed for weeks. In issuing a policy of title insurance many minor defects in title, which a lawyer in his opinion might point out and require to be removed, can be disregarded and accepted as risks of no significance.

A Congressional Fish Feeder.

Joseph C. Sibley, former member of congress from Pennsylvania, has a large, well-stocked fish pond on his farm from which his dining table is constantly supplied with toothsome bass, salmon, trout, pike, perch, eels, sunfish and many other varieties of fresh water streams. In order to keep his fish fat and contented, the former legislator devised a simple scheme whereby bugs of a thousand varieties automatically feed themselves to his denizens of the deep. He placed a high-powered electric light a few feet above the center of the lake which he keeps burning all night, thus attracting the wee things of the air which buzz around the light until worn out and then fall into the yawning jaws of the waiting occupants of the pond. This keeps the fishes hard at work all night long, necessitating daylight sleeping. Each morning at sunrise the fishes close their eyes and slumber until the sun disappears at night beyond the western hills, and the light is again turned on. They are so

Uncle Sam's Neptune Ace On Longest Flight

When Lieut. Walter Hinton, U. S. Navy, flew the first seaplane across the Atlantic in 1919, he wrote his name in history. He is now on another assignment, in a Navy plane flight from New York to Rio de Janeiro, which if completed will be a record trip of 8,400 miles.

Lieut. Hinton with a pilot, a mechanic, one newspaper man and a Brazilian passenger, left New York August 17th and is expected to reach Rio September 7th, in time for the opening of the Brazilian Centennial Exposition. All down the Atlantic coast flying on a craft, the Sampaio Correia, encountered heavy head winds and was often turned back. This is one of the biggest seaplanes yet built by Uncle Sam.

The pictures show Hinton (indicated by arrow), and crew, last, shows seaplane at start of the flight, just before raising from the water.

dead tired each morning that they sleep like the dead all day. This makes it exceedingly convenient for Mr. Sibley's cook. She merely reaches into the water and plucks them out by the tail. As a rule they don't wake up until placed in the frying pan. Patronize community dealers.

Extreme grief isn't supposed to last forever, but a woman never forgives a widower for smiling—unless he's smiling at her.

Why uses must be found for more POWER

Where the petulant Pit River and its tributaries shove their fretful way through barren volcanic deposits, only to broaden out and indolently mope in untillable valleys the P G and E is rapidly developing the most promising hydro-electric power district in California.

Already three plants, known as Hat Creek No. 1 and No. 2, and Pit No. 1, are being operated.

When the District's power is fully developed in conformity with well-made plans, an aggregated installed capacity of 600,000 horsepower will have been saved from Nature's wasteful hands.

Visualize 700 passenger trains of 10 cars each being operated at 45 miles an hour, and you will realize the amount of energy that will be developed in this district alone each day. Imagine a belt a mile wide, running over a pulley at the rate of a mile a minute, and some conception of the driving force procurable in this one region will be had.

The most of this potential power will be in addition to the power already being generated by the P G and E with its 28 hydro-electric and 4 steam-electric power plants.

As there is now a considerable surplus of power in "Superior" California it becomes apparent that attention must be immediately directed to developing uses for more power if the best interests of the community are to be served.

Not Sure.

A minister, on the occasion of a marriage, was at a loss in trying to discover the bridegroom among the company of young men present. Fixing on a young man with a large flower in his buttonhole, he asked him quietly: "Are you a happy man?" "That remains to be seen," was the solemn answer. "But are you the man who is to be married?" "Oh, that's another matter,"—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Strongly Impressed.

A stone carver was on the witness stand describing the way in which he had been assaulted by the defendant.

"He walked right into my yard and slammed me up against one of my tombstones," the witness said.

"Did he hurt you?" inquired the court.

"Hurt me?" roared the witness. "Why, I've got 'Sacred to the Memory of,' stamped all down my back."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

AGED MAN FOUND DEAD IN HIS CHAIR

Charles Henry Rendell, an aged man well known in this city, where he had been for a number of years, was found dead in his chair Wednesday morning at an early hour. Mr. Rendell was the uncle of Mrs. J. O. Snyder and occupied an apartment at the Snyder home. His body was found sitting upright in his chair early Wednesday morning by Mr. Snyder, whose attention had been called to the manner in which he was sitting by the young son of Dr. T. C. Doak, who lives across the street. Young Doak had noticed Mr. Rendell sitting in the chair by his window, but the strained position in which he sat had aroused the boy's suspicion.

Mr. Rendell was 70 years of age at the time of his death. He was born in Belfast, Maine, where his family had lived for many years. He had lived with his niece in this city for six years. The funeral will take place Friday, in charge of S. Neri, with burial at Woodlawn Cemetery.

DRIVER CAN THANK SCREEN FOR SAVING HIS NECK

At the time the new fence was built around the grounds of the Fontana Food Products Company on San Bruno road, there was considerable speculation as to how soon some reckless auto driver would drive a machine through it. It happened last Friday night, when two autos traveling at high speed met at Death Curve. To avoid a collision the one going east on the Linden avenue extension took a chance on going over the sidewalk and crashed into the fence. One iron post was torn from its concrete base and bent double and four other posts were bent, but the heavy woven wire in the fence served as a huge spring, keeping the auto from going over the embankment and considerably lessened the amount of damage it sustained. As it was, the front of the machine was badly wrecked. The names of the drivers were not secured.

CONTROLLER'S OFFICE ISSUES COUNTY STATEMENT

The grand total of all property in the county is given as $40,657,082. The total county indebtedness is $1,208,176.58.

S. Dolley for a prize foxtrot. The members of the lodge expect a record-breaking attendance.

MR. NUSSEL CATCHES FISH; WHO'S NEXT?

Last Sunday A. J. Nussel of this city proved that when he goes fishing he catches fish. He proved this to the entire satisfaction of the editor of The Enterprise, at least. And now ye humble scribe is wondering who will be next with similar proof. Mr. Nussel went to Vallejo and fished off the wharf, with the result that he captured five fine striped bass, one of them measuring twenty-eight inches and weighing five pounds. And when he came home Mr. Nussel invited the editor in to inspect the finny beauties and furthermore presented him with a mess of fish, excellent in quality and generous in quantity. We rise to remark that many fishermen of this town have returned from angling trips with bigger stories but without offering half such satisfactory proof of their prowess.
